

Apprenticeship Training

The NECE offers theoretical courses to create cost-effective training to meet identified skill set needs. Company representatives work with NECE training experts to develop complete packages delivered either online and/or self-study to meet company training objectives and timelines.

Apprenticeship Training Available

System Protection Technician

- Prepares employees to work with the necessary expertise in electric utility protective relaying maintenance procedures.

Substation Electrician

- Prepares employees to work with the necessary expertise in substation apparatus maintenance procedures.

Relay-Apparatus Technician

- Prepares employees to work with the necessary expertise in system protection systems as well as substation apparatus.

Metering Technician

- Prepares employees to work with the necessary expertise in revenue watt-hour meter maintenance.

Telecommunications

- Prepares employees to work with the necessary expertise in electric utility telecommunications maintenance procedures.

Customized Packages

- Developed a customized apprenticeship program to meet company specific training needs.

